For Immediate Release:

Newsweek Names The Glen at Willow Valley Communities #1 Nursing Home in PA

Lancaster, PA, – Willow Valley Communities’ supportive living, The Glen at Willow Valley, has been named the number one nursing home in Pennsylvania for 2020 by Newsweek magazine. Newsweek partnered with the global data research firm Statista Inc. to survey over 15,000 nursing homes in the 20 largest U.S. states. The results are based on recommendations from 46,000 medical experts and on the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) data on health inspections, staffing, and quality measures. The survey was developed to recognize senior care organizations that stand out for their dedication to excellence in resident care. The lists contain 406 unique nursing homes nationwide.

Willow Valley Communities is one of the nation’s premier 55 plus senior living communities and is a Type A Lifecare community offering a full continuum of care. Lifecare means that residents’ monthly fees do not increase because of an increased level of care that may be needed over time. The Glen at Willow Valley offers a range of support services from short-term rehabilitation for those recovering from illness or surgery, specialized memory support, and long-term nursing care specializing in management of complex medical conditions. The entire Glen team provides top-quality care in each discipline with compassion, in a home-like environment. The Glen has its own in-house rehabilitation services in the form of Occupational, Physical, and Speech therapies.

Kendall K. Hunsicker, Vice President of Healthcare Services for Willow Valley Communities, expressed her gratefulness to The Glen at Willow Valley’s team for their expertise in their fields, the high level of commitment to the residents they serve, and their accomplishment.
